

A Method and a System for Producing Electrospray Ions

ABSTRACT

A system for producing electrospray ions includes a thermal inkjet material dispenser configured to selectively emit a plurality of sample material particles, and an electrically conducting grid disposed in proximity with the thermal inkjet material dispenser, the grid being configured to permit a selective passage of the emitted sample material particles.